clarifying the path to sustainable SDOH programs

Social factors have significant effects on an individual's health but the healthcare industry has historically lacked a systematic approach to addressing those factors.

Now many healthcare organizations are developing programs to combat the social risk factors affecting their members and the communities they serve.

Spring Street's SDOH Benchmark Assessment provides insights and recommendations toward a sustainable and effective approach to addressing social needs.

The only national database benchmarking healthcare organizations'
efforts to combat SDOH

Our SDOH Benchmark Assessment

provides scores and recommendations to help healthcare organizations achieve a sustainable approach to addressing social risk factors across four focus areas:

- 1. Awareness, Alignment, and Organizational Structure
- 2. Social Needs and Member Identification
- 3. Programs and Partnerships
- 4. Measurement, Outcomes, and Impact

Gain an understanding of how your organization's SDOH footprint compares against others. Through an online questionnaire and meeting with our team, we can provide you with insight to propel your organization forward.

Results include:

Scores for each area of focus to measure your organization's SDOH progression.

Benchmarks of your organization's SDOH progression against our growing database of health plans.

Recommendations prioritized and customized to help your organization develop or optimize a sustainable SDOH platform.

Our SDOH Benchmark Assessment shows where your organization is today, benchmarks you against peers, and helps identify where to go next.

We provide custom insight to help your organization chart a sustainable path to addressing social needs in healthcare.
